Chapter 404: The Unfathomable Origins

In the aftermath of the great confrontation, Sung Jin-Woo reflected on the origins of the threats. From his throne in the True Absolute One Domain Realm, his gaze pierced through the infinite layers of existence. The Void, the Abyss, and the Nexus were not mere realms—they were remnants of something older, something beyond even his understanding.

A Revelation from the Primordial Records

As his thoughts delved deeper, the Primordial Records, a vast repository of knowledge stored within his divine mind, began to reveal truths hidden since the dawn of creation.

1. The Void's Origin: The Void was not born from chaos but from the fragments of a broken cosmos that predated even the multiverse. The Voidborn Aberrations were survivors of that shattered reality, clinging to existence and seeking to rebuild their lost domain.

2. The Abyss's Creation: The Abyss was a byproduct of the balance between life and death. It formed as a counterweight to creation itself, a place where unformed souls and forgotten energy gathered. The Abyssal Wraiths were its natural inhabitants, protectors of the Abyss's boundaries, corrupted over eons by despair and isolation.

3. The Nexus's Paradox: The Nexus Realm was a hub of infinite timelines, formed when the first act of creation split into countless possibilities. The Nexus Paradox Beasts were unintended manifestations, born from the fractures between timelines that could never fully align.

A Call to the Divine Triad

Realizing the magnitude of these origins, Sung Jin-Woo summoned Ashborn and Sung Su-Ho to his side. The True Celestial Being and the True Dragon God appeared instantly, their immense presences filling the throne chamber.

"These threats," Sung Jin-Woo began, "are not mere accidents. They are echoes of a time before us, before everything. We must understand their purpose, their design, to ensure the multiverse's stability."

Ashborn, his voice calm yet resolute, responded, "The Void, the Abyss, and the Nexus are like scars on the fabric of existence. Healing them may be impossible, but we can contain their influence."

Sung Su-Ho nodded. "Then let us act. Together, we can unravel their mysteries and secure the realms."

The Divine Expedition

The three gods prepared to journey beyond the multiverse, into the heart of these enigmatic realms.

1. To the Void: Sung Jin-Woo would venture into the Void, seeking the source of its chaotic energy.

2. To the Abyss: Ashborn would descend into the Abyss, confronting its corrupted guardians.

3. To the Nexus: Sung Su-Ho would explore the Nexus, stabilizing its fractured timelines.

Each carried their divine authority and armies, ready to face whatever awaited them.

The Watchers Return

As preparations were underway, a disturbance rippled through the True Absolute One Domain Realm. The Watchers Beyond Time, thought to be annihilated by Sung Jin-Woo, reappeared—not as enemies, but as fragmented remnants seeking refuge.

"Why do you return?" Sung Jin-Woo demanded, his voice shaking the cosmos.

One fragment, barely coherent, whispered, "We were but tools of something greater... something ancient. Beware the Primordial Will."

A New Foe Unveiled

The Primordial Will—a force that predated all creation—was revealed to be the true orchestrator of the threats. It sought to reclaim its dominance over existence, using the Void, the Abyss, and the Nexus as instruments of its will.

Sung Jin-Woo, Ashborn, and Sung Su-Ho understood the gravity of this revelation. The Primordial Will was no mere foe; it was the very essence of opposition to their divine rule.

A Unified Resolve

The Divine Triad stood together, their combined strength illuminating the throne chamber.

"If the Primordial Will seeks to disrupt our realms," Sung Jin-Woo declared, "then we shall face it head-on. Its time has passed—this era belongs to us."

Ashborn raised his hand, summoning his celestial blade. "Let the light of creation guide us."

Sung Su-Ho unfurled his fiery dragon wings. "And let the wrath of dragons burn our enemies to ash."

The three gods set forth, their armies following behind, ready to confront the Primordial Will and ensure the eternal stability of the multiverse.
